The European Journal of Women's Studies held a symposium at the Centre in February on the theme of European gender research in an age of right-wing populism, growing racism and anti-gender ideologies. As part of the symposium were two very well-attended open lectures, by Prof. Clare Hemmings, LSE and Dr. Alyosxa Tudor, SOAS. The lectures were co-sponsored by the Centre for Gender Research, the Centre for Multidisciplinary Research on Racism, The European Journal of Women's Studies, and with support from Uppsala Forum on Democracy, Peace and Justice.
